Kids Love To Get Dirty In The Garden

There aren't too many things that peek kids imagination and curiosity more than a garden does. If it is a couple of planter boxes or a larger plot of dirt in your backyard, kids are drawn to it. There is a wealth of learning that can happen especially when kids are involved in the whole process from seed to the grown plant.

Think of their amazement when they see the little green leaves sprouting up through the dirt and over the weeks the leaves turn into a vegetable or fruit producing plant! Kids will learn about where food comes from and how it tastes better coming fresh from the earth. By understanding the agricultural process kids will have a better appreciation for food.

There are other life lessons that can be learned from gardening too. The kids will learn that it takes patience and perseverance and the end result is well worth all of the hard work.

Let us make our children to do this on this auspicious day of diwali, as this will make them to know that they have a part of protecting this world from global warming.

We take this opportunity of diwali to give your children to learn about hardwork, patience and would also request you to help your child in gardening and watch the changes happen on them.
